To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to you as a practitioner of Neuromodulation Technique (NMT), developed by Dr. Leslie Feinberg. I am a Chiropractic Physician as well as a national board certified acupuncturist and have been in private practice for the last 17 years. During that time period I have attended many seminars and learned a variety of techniques to better help my patients.

When I first heard of the work that Dr. Feinberg was doing and the results he was getting with NMT, I was quite intrigued and took his first seminar. Dr. Feinberg taught his seminar by use of the NMT seminar manual. I left the seminar very excited about the prospects for using NMT in my practice and found that the system did actually work as disclosed.

I have used NMT to treat people with a wide variety of complaints and found that it is very useful in treating patients. As a Chiropractic Physician, many people I treat are in chronic and acute pain. I remember one woman in particular in my early days of using NMT, whose cervical pain was so severe that I couldn't even get her to lie down on the table. So I treated her using the NMT protocols as I was taught and within a few minutes, not only was she able to lie down, she had restored range of motion and was practically pain free.

Probably one of my most unusual cases was with a woman who came to me with severe vertigo and hearing loss in one ear. I treated her using NMT and upon her return later that week not only had her vertigo ceased, but she had been to her audiologist who confirmed that she had regained full hearing in the one ear.

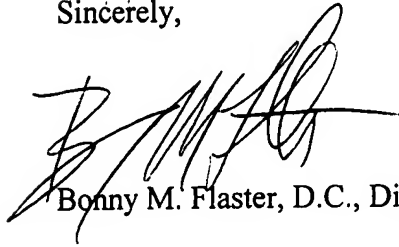

NMT is able to address a wide spectrum of disorders that affect the body. It is a logical system based on physiology and anatomy and it works extremely well. At this point it is my main treatment modality and with it I have been able to help people with allergies to eliminate the allergic reaction, correct chronic digestive disorders, eliminate acute and chronic pain to give a few examples.

Dr. Feinberg has created a powerful tool and has dedicated an enormous amount of time and energy perfecting NMT and training practitioners. I for one am very grateful that I learned about his work and have been able to take advantage of his knowledge and efforts. It has made me a much better practitioner and my patients have benefited greatly.

If any further information is needed about my experiences in private practice using NMT, please contact me.

Sincerely,
